

International Relations

International Relations is a dynamic and interdisciplinary field that explores the interactions between states, international organizations, and non-state actors. It examines the causes and consequences of international conflict, cooperation, and global change. The program provides a comprehensive understanding of the international system and the role of the United States in the world.

Honours

The Honours program in International Relations is a rigorous and challenging course of study that prepares students for advanced research and professional careers in the field. It includes a thesis and a comprehensive examination.

- oo
- o
-
- o
- o

Major

The Major in International Relations is a comprehensive program that provides students with a deep understanding of the international system and the role of the United States. It includes courses in international law, international politics, and international relations theory. The program also offers students the opportunity to study abroad and to participate in research and professional development activities.

Year 1

- o
- o / α

Year 2

- 2 o
- 2
- 2
- 2 2

Years 3 and 4

Years 3 and 4 of the International Relations program are dedicated to advanced study and research. Students take specialized courses and complete a thesis. They also have the opportunity to participate in internships and to study abroad. The program concludes with a comprehensive examination.

Minor

- 2

IREL-4013. Honours Thesis

The Honours Thesis is a research project that is completed over the summer months. It is a requirement for students who are pursuing a Bachelor of Arts degree with Honours in International Relations. The thesis is a research project that is completed over the summer months. It is a requirement for students who are pursuing a Bachelor of Arts degree with Honours in International Relations.

The University of New Brunswick offers courses that may be counted towards the 6 credits required in the Areas Studies requirement. Please consult the Chair of the Department of Political Science for a current listing.